Bar of the Year

The Bank Bar and Restaurant opened in May 2003 and is located on College Green in the heart of Dublin. This site has been occupied since Viking times, as we are located in the oldest region of the city in close proximity to the Viking Parliament or Thingmount. In the 17th and 18th centuries the area grew to even greater importance following the construction of Trinity College and later the Irish House of Parliament (Grattan’s Parliament) across the way on College Green.

In July 2nd of 1892 the Belfast Bank acquired this property from the British Mutual. The construction project that followed – a symbol of grandiose Victorian splendour – took two years to complete, costing in excess of £8,000.

The exterior is Franco-Scottish in inspiration and is unique in that it is one of Dublin’s rare examples of Scottish sandstone. The interior, which was once the main banking hall, is a stunning example of merchant power and patronage displaying an extraordinary ornate setting, stained glass ceiling, mosaic tiled floors and spectacular hand carved plasterwork and cornicing. If you ramble downstairs to the nether regions you will find the vaults. Look at our Chatwood safes, now retained as a museum-type feature.

We brew our own beer. Introducing...

We're a new brewery based in Glasnevin, Dublin along the banks of the Royal Canal, founded by brewer Shane Long and the families behind some of Dublin's best known pubs. Pubs that have years of experience knowing the tastes of their customers. 'Changing Times' has created new locally brewed, authentic and refreshing tasting Irish drinks to meet changing tastes. Across the pub counters, customers were saying they were in the mood for change. They told these publican families that we should be brewing our own range. They wanted new, but refreshingly Irish draft beers. We listened and took note. That customer feedback led to chats, which became conversations, which became discussions between themselves and brewer Shane Long. That's how Changing Times was born. Change has been good for modern Ireland. That is the spirit behind Changing Times-there's always time for something new. Changing Times is about changing minds, one sip at a time
